Meeting of the U. F. A.

A very well attended meeting of Stony Plain Local of the United Farmers was held on Saturday afternoon last, February 4th, at the Royal Parlors. After some discussion it was decided to hold a box social and dance in the near future.

Mr. A. Klapper, in very clear tones, gave a very good account of the proceedings at the big Provincial Convention recently held at Calgary.

Assemblyman W. M. Washburn gave an entertaining description of the opening proceedings of the Legislative Assembly of Alberta, last week, and the transaction of business on the first and second days.

To enable members to keep informed as to the doings in the House, it was decided to hold another meeting on Sat., Feb. 8, when Mr. Washburn will give another address.

Late Spring Predicted.

Groundhogs, bears, and such like folk which go to sleep for the winter, rolled over, yawned, stretched, walked out of their banks Thursday last, blinked at the sun, saw their shadow, turned right round, and went back to bed again. And that means that we're going to have a late spring, according to all the old prophets.

This is sure to be disappointing news, especially after the easy winter which we have so far experienced. So Stonyites, if they're wise, will not either "take 'em off" or start digging their gardens just yet.

Party at Umbach's.

A very enjoyable party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Umbach, on Friday evening last, Feb. 3d.

It started by a meeting of the Young People's Society of Stony Plain, with Mr. Durward Moyer presiding.

Rev. F. E. Wilson gave a very informative talk on "The Effect of Drugs Upon People." This was followed by another interesting discourse on a similar topic, by Mr. W. E. Hainsworth.

After this, it developed into a jolly party, when games of all kinds were indulged in. Mr. Hainsworth gave a good performance of tricks, which greatly amused the audience.

A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess, Mrs. I. Umbach, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Bishop.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wilson, the Misses Lalonde, Mabelle Clarke, Doris Brill, Marjorie Anderson, Gladys Davis, Margaret Paul, Maud Davis, Annie Paul, Messrs W. E. Hainsworth, John Bonn, Franklin Clarke, Clarence Lory, Philip Alt, Glen Ashmead, John Kulak, John Miller, Durward Moyer.

The L-A to the Rescue.

Sam Allen, railroad agent at the Yard, is off duty these days, complaining of a real wheeze. Sam has sent word to the boys that he prefers his flowers before rather than after. "Stock Yard Ladies" Aid is trying to relieve the situation by delivering a cup in limited quantities. — Calgary Market Examiner.

Canada's Needs

No. 6—Scientific Research

In the course of the several articles which have appeared in this column under the above general heading, some of Canada's needs have been enumerated but only in the most general way has any attempt been made to suggest ways and means of meeting and providing for those needs. Recently, however, a little pamphlet has been issued by the Honorary Advisory Council for Scientific and Industrial Research which merits the serious consideration of the Canadian people and is worthy of the widest possible circulation. It presents at least one very practical suggestion how some of the needs referred to, more particularly in the fourth article of this series, can be met. It is, therefore, proposed to quote at some length from the pamphlet in question which is entitled "Research and the Problems of Unemployment, Business Depression and National Finance in Canada."

"I am not a protectionist but I say this," declared a statesman now dead. "The variety of work carried on among the citizens of Canada should be as comprehensive as possible."

"Not because we are thus enabled to boast of the number of our trades—that would be more vanity."

"Not merely because our country should be able to fill as much as possible of its own needs without having to call foreign aid."

"Not merely because we should learn as soon as possible to finish the raw material with which Nature endowed us—rather than confess our helplessness by asking foreigners to finish them for us and giving them the wages and the profit on our raw materials."

"Not merely because our country should as soon as possible escape from dependence for its prosperity on any one kind of production but should divide the risk among many."

"But because Canada should retain her most ambitious sons and daughters within her own boundaries by encouraging for their sakes that variety of occupation from engineering to farming—from chemistry to literature—which, if they want the highest awards and honors, they are still compelled nowadays to seek abroad."

One of the serious drains on the strength of the Dominion of Canada is the annual loss of engineers, chemists, scientific farmers and technical experts—whose training paid for by Canadians in Canadian schools and universities supported by Canadian public money, thus goes out to make foreign countries rich and place Canada further in their debt for foreign goods and services.

Monopolies of knowledge—that is, monopolies of special branches of technical knowledge—constitute one of the most powerful weapons of trade today.

Secret agreements, combines, trusts and the ordinary method of "conspiracies in the restraint of trade," become very mild and impotent weapons when compared to those formidable instruments as, for example, a secret chemical formula that might be scribbled on the back of a calling card.

In the bloodless wars for international trade it is the armies of chemists and engineers that must be mobilized, drilled and directed against the parapets of unknown scientific facts. Export duties, credit leagues, intelligence departments, persuasive salesmanship and even the magic of a great flag, cannot win or cannot hold, for long, trade for a country whose producers are not armed with scientific knowledge of their work.

A great camera manufacturing concern in the United States is able to dominate its field in at least half the world because it knows more scientific secrets of that trade than anyone else. Because, if a new concern started in opposition, it need only reach into its pigeon holes for some new formula—not otherwise convenient to exploit at present—by which to raise its product one step beyond the competition of the would-be rival.

So in steel-making! So in the manufacture of electrical apparatus! So in textiles! So in chemistry! So in agriculture! So in every important branch of human industry!

So in Canada—as compared to other nations—everyone of our industries is threatened, and must ultimately fall under the thrall of foreign domination unless it keeps pace with the advances in technical knowledge.

So, unless we master all that is to be known regarding the nature and possibilities of our vast supplies of varied raw materials, Canadians must ultimately find themselves at the mercy of foreigners who know how to prepare our riches for purposes of commerce.

Fifty concerns in the United States recent research departments at costs ranging from $25,000 to $2,000,000 a year. In England, France and Germany, the race for technical knowledge for purposes of trade gathers speed. The mere digger-out of raw materials gets the pay of a laborer. The nation that can finish its raw materials trembles and quadruples its rewards.

The question is—Shall Canada keep reasonably in pace with the modern movement? Shall Canada add to her natural possessions a superior knowledge of how to use them?

Can the needed variety of occupations for ambitious Canadian sons and daughters be maintained unless she does make places for such knowledge and encourage those who extend it?

Can the burdens of Canadian taxation and the evils of unemployment be offset if Canada, in her struggle for markets and for good returns on her wares, does not possess herself of the instrument of technical knowledge?

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe that the mother cannot take the little ones out for an airing, the consequence is that baby is confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms; takes cold and becomes cross and seething. Baby's Own Tablets should be given to keep baby healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

U. F. A. Locals Asked to Aid.

The United Farmers of Alberta, at a meeting last week of their Central Executive, passed a resolution calling for support of the fund being raised to carry on the clothing relief work of the Red Cross Society. Following is the resolution;

"Whereas the Canadian Red Cross are appealing for contributions to a fund to be raised for relief in the crop-failure districts of Alberta;

"Therefore be it resolved that the Executive Committee of the U. F. A. heartily endorse this action of the Red Cross, and express the hope that U. F. locals thruout the province will use their best endeavors to help their distressed fellow farmers."

Cheer Up, Machinery's Down

New ground for cheerfulness thruout the West lies in the fact that prices are beginning to drop in the agricultural machinery market.

Manufacturers say that their production this year will not be heavy, but it is their intention to make fairly substantial cuts on some of their standard lines.

It looks as though things are now coming the farmers' way after a period of high prices that has hit him specially hard.

Machinery has been one of the costliest items in the operation of Western farms, and a forthcoming reduction, which presumably will be general, is good news.

It does not indicate any sudden change of heart or policy on the part of manufacturers, but simply that the general downward tendency in the industrial markets has now made it possible for this part of the farmers' service to be included.

Hog Most Suitable to Alberta

W F Stevens, in Market Examiner: What is the best breed of hogs for bacon production in Alberta?

This is a question that can easily bring down a storm about the head of the man who attempts to answer it.

In a general way, the best breed for any swine grower is the one which he can bring to a finished condition at a weight of 200 lbs by the use of not to exceed 1000 lbs of grain, in not to exceed six months' time and which will be graded "select bacon" when offered for sale.

Many do this with Yorkshires; for them Yorkshires is the best breed. Others do it with Tamworths; I see no reason why they should experiment with other breeds. Some fail with both of these.

For shoh there is good reason why they should change. My observation of the methods of Alberta swine growers convinces me that their failure is due in most cases to the general practice of scant or improper feeding during the ten weeks immediately following the time the animals are weaned. For some, scant feeding for a time is made necessary thru farmers being forced to sell grain to meet pressing financial obligations. Others do scant feeding thru force of habit. With others, failure is due to supplying of feed unsuited to the state of development of the animals; limiting weanling pigs to a ration suitable for hogs in the fattening pen. The man who follows this practise displays no knowledge of the laws of feeding and of digestion and nutrition.

Poultry Breeding.

The Experimental Farms of the Dominion are doing some excellent work in poultry breeding. After four or five years, birds and strains have been produced of exceedingly high productive capacity. In the Prairie Provinces the Experimental Farms have reached high record. At Indian Head, Sask., last year 102 pullets had an average of 187.7 eggs, the highest being 292. At Lethbridge, Alta., the average production has increased two or three times over what it was nine or ten years ago. At Agassiz Experimental Farm Brit Columbia, 200 eggs are common and from 150 to 270 are not rare. At the Vancouver Island station 200 pullets gave an average of 195.97 82 going above 200. The high production of 300 eggs in a year has been reached for one pullet. Hens that cannot lay 200 in twelve months are not wanted and no cockerel is retained unless his mother laid 250 eggs in her pullet year. It should be noted that high class breeding stocks and eggs are available to the public from the Experimental farms. This opportunity as being well taken advantage of, the demand for pedigree cockerels, through which the best egg laying results are obtained far exceeding the supply.

Gardiner retained his sense of location, and slipped silently to the wall. Harris was rushing about the rotten floor in the darkness, crying, "What is it, Allan? For God's sake, what has happened? Are you shot?" and his own noise he could not hear. Gardiner's stealthy movements, Gardiner's hand fell on a log of the wall, and his keen fingers traced their way along it. Five steps, he judged, and the bag would be at his feet. At the fifth step his toe touched an object on the floor; he leaned over and raised the boot in his hand.

By this time his eyes had responded to the intense darkness, and he could discern a square of greasy gloom where the window adjoined the night. He moved rapidly and silently toward it, but almost with the last step his foot slipped through a hook on the floor, and he staggered and fell. The revolver was thrown from his grasp, but he managed to clutch the back through the window as he crashed to the floor.

The sound arrested Harris, and before Gardiner could extricate himself the farmer was upon him. At first he seemed to think it was Allan, and felt about in the darkness without attempting to defend himself. This gave Gardiner an opportunity; he was able to clasp his arms about Harris's shins, and with a quick turn of the body, cast his adversary headlong to the floor. At the same moment he freed himself from his entanglement and made another dash for the window.

But Harris, still numbed from his heavy sleep, now realized that some kind of tragedy had occurred, and guessed enough to believe that Allan was a victim. From his prostrate position, with one powerful leg he interrupted Gardiner's flight, and the next moment the two men were rolling on the floor in each other's arms. Harris was much the stronger man of the two, but Gardiner was active and had some skill in wrestling. Besides, Harris had been taken wholly by surprise, and had no idea who his antagonist was, while Gardiner had full knowledge of all the circumstances, and the struggle was less uneven than might have been supposed. Inwardly cursing the luck that had thrown the revolver from his hand, Gardiner sought in the darkness for his adversary's throat, nose, or ear. Harris, seizing the younger man by the waist, lifted him bodily from the floor and crashed him down again upon it, but the next instant Gardiner had one of his hands in both of his, and, bringing his knee down with great force on Harris's elbow, compelled him, at the risk of a broken arm, to turn face downwards on the floor. Gardiner again wrenched violently to break free, but Harris's grip was too much for him, so with the quickness and fury of a tiger he threw himself upon the farmer's back and, with his free arm about his throat, released the grip of his other hand. Harris instantly took advantage of this move to bring both arms to bear on Harris's throat. Things had been too badly with the farmer; face downwards on the floor, he was unable to shake his adversary off, and he was losing strength rapidly with his choking. Gardiner no longer sought an opportunity to break away; his blood was up and he was in the fight to the finish, ruled at last by his heart instead of his head. Had he been content merely to retain his present advantage, unconsciousness would soon have overcome his victim, but he tried to improve his grip, and the attempt proved disastrous. His thumb, seizing better vantage, fell into Harris's gasping mouth. Harris was no sterner of his life than he was of his death, but when fighting for life, and checking to death in the hands of an unknown foe, he was ready to seize any advantage, and with a great effort he brought his jaws together upon the farmer's thumb.

With a yell of pain Gardiner sprang to his feet, jerking the farmer into a flying posture as he did so, and Harris, with a great gasp for air, relinquished his sudden, and unexpected advantage. But at Gardiner's leap, Harris, lost in the gloom of the night, for some minutes Harris lay on the floor, recovering his breath. As the oxygen welled back into his lungs he began to realize that, save for his choking, he was unhurt. With returning strength his thought reverted to Allan, and, calling the boy's name, he sprang to his feet. The first thing was to get a light. He found matches in his pocket, struck one, and peered eagerly into the gloom as his flickering flame beat back the darkness. A blanket, rolled and stained, lay in the doorway, and within it was a figure that might once have been a man. Harris's heart almost stopped at the sight. "Allan," he gasped, "my boy Allan." He uttered across the crumbling floor toward it, holding the match before him. A man's head and part of a trouser leg protruded from the mass. He held the match downward, leaning over them. They were not Allan.

"Thank God," he murmured, swelling with a great hope, "Thank God for that."

He struck another match and found the lantern. When he had lighted it he surveyed the little building, and saw Allan's gun lying at the end farthest from the door. Not until that moment did he think of the money. Allan had been uppermost in his mind, and when he thought of Allan, money was no consideration. But now a great wave of understanding rushed in upon him. Yes, the bag was gone. They had been attacked by robbers. Knowledge of their expedition had in some way got to evil ears, and while he slept Allan had been set upon. The boy had emptied his gun—the huddled mass in the doorway told that tale plainly enough—but other robbers had seized the cash and Allan had pursued them empty-handed. They had fired at him as he rushed from the building—that was the flash he saw a few seconds after the first loud report. He was not quite clear as to his own share in the fight, but he saw the general plan of it plainly enough. He began to wonder what had happened to Gardiner and Riles. Had they been shot down as they wound through the woods? This was evidently the work of a gang prepared to stop at nothing. Harris never for a moment suspected his old neighbour of treachery. He was honest, hard, grasping, money-seeking man, but he had a code of honour none the less, and within its limitations none was more honourable than he. To have done what Riles had done would have been quite impossible for John Harris, and because it was impossible for him it was impossible for Riles never suggested itself.

Harris had not yet fully realized the loss of his money. It was overshadowed by the more tragic events of which one evidence lay before him. His anxiety for Allan loomed larger in his mind, although he had little doubt the boy would take proper care of himself, and even if unarmed, would come back with the money and perhaps with a prisoner. The fact that Allan had not taken his gun was reassuring; if there had been any great danger he would not have left it behind. But he must get out now and aid in the search.

As he reached this decision his eyes caught a gleam of something shining on the floor. He walked to it and found a revolver, fully loaded except for one chamber, which had been discharged. "This is evidence," said he. "Important evidence." Harris had all the old Ontario contempt for this kind of weapon, and knew comparatively little about it, but he concluded from its appearance that it was almost new. As he examined it his eyes fell on the initials, "J. T.," cut in the grip.

"J. T.," he said to himself. "J. T. Those initials seem familiar. I'll just leave this thing where I found it, until the police see it."

Replacing the weapon on the floor, he stole out of the cabin, avoiding the silent obstruction in the doorway. Outside he stood for a moment, but the circle of light from his lantern might betray Allan back to the shanty, but it would also prove a signal to the robbers, if they were still in the vicinity. The night was now very dark, clouds having obscured the stars, and an occasional big drop of rain spat about him—fine—near—of water came up from the valley, but above or through that rain suddenly he fancied he heard a sound from the bushes near at hand. He held his breath and listened intently. He half wished he had brought the revolver with him. Yes, there it was again—a human sound, beyond question, half groan, half gurgle. He turned in the direction from which it came, and stole quietly forward. Half-a-dozen yards from the building the light revealed, first a shadow, and then a figure lying on the ground. With some trepidation Harris approached. The man's arms had been extended when he fell, and his coat was thrown over his head. Harris stooped and drew it down over the shoulders exposing the face.

It was Allan.

The first shock of the revelation almost stopped the heart of the old farmer, and he sat back as one dazed unable to accept the testimony of his own eyes. Then came a panic of uncertainty, and he fell upon the boy, groping wildly for his heart, and at last pressing upon it in an agony of fear. . . . Yes, the beat was there, faint and uneven, but unmistakable. With a sudden surge of returning hope he brought his ear down to the open mouth, fringed with light red foam, and could hear the air labouring in the ravaged lungs. Then came that human sound, half gurgle, half groan; but to Harris, in the reaction from his first paralyzing fear, it was as very music from heaven. His boy still lived, and still should live. (To be continued)

Will Limit Navies And Restrict Use Of Gas And Submarines

Washington.—The Washington negotiations for limitation of armament reached their consummation when a plenary session of the Arms Conference gave definite and public approval to the two treaties limiting navies and restricting the use of new agencies of warfare.

One of the covenants thus sealed after eleven weeks of debate establishes a fixed ratio of capital ship strength between the five great powers and the other pledges them against unrestricted submarine warfare and use of poison gas. Within a day or two the plenipotentiaries of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy will formally affix their signatures.

At the same session the Far Eastern wing of the conference moved forward toward completion of its tasks by announcing officially the terms of the Shantung settlement and by giving final approval to nine of the resolutions adopted in committee in regard to Chinese problems.

The agreement on Shantung already has been put into a draft treaty between Japan and China and the other Far Eastern settlements are to be embodied in at least two general conventions which will come before the conference shortly.

Her Own Future

Country Too Big For Foreign Nations

To Own
Los Angeles.—China will settle her own future, according to Dr. John C. Ferguson, advisor to the President of the Chinese Republic, in Los Angeles, on his way to Peking from the Washington arms conference. China has enjoyed the opportunity of stating its case to the world.

"Foreign nations will never own China. The country is too big, too complicated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again."

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader will, no doubt, remember when a few years ago there was a collision in the Halifax, N.S. Harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

Mrs. Winfield Dill, now of Windsor, N.S. was living in Halifax at that time and went through the trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows:—"I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care."

I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes, and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble."

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend our

New Record For Vancouver Port

Largest Number of Ships Called During January

Vancouver.—Fifty-three deep sea ships, not including the big vessels that ply between Vancouver and San Francisco, entered and departed at this port during January.

This sets a new mark for Vancouver and it is expected that the end of the year will see the total of deep sea vessels arriving and departing above any preceding year. In November, 1919, fifty-five ships entered and departed, but these included many oil, freight and passenger ships to California ports which now are classed as coastwise.

Last year, to the end of December, 339 ships arrived here compared with 336 vessels during the preceding 12 months.

Berlin.—Two French soldiers were killed and twenty-five were wounded in the disorders at Petersburg, Silesia, according to the latest reports from Gleiwitz. Shots were exchanged while the soldiers were searching houses for arms.

Ottawa.—The amalgamation of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with the militia, naval and air forces in the proposed department of defence, is creating much interest as to the future of that force. During the last two sessions, when legislation was before parliament to provide for bringing that force out of the west and amalgamating with it the Dominion police with headquarters at Ottawa, there was considerable opposition from members of parliament, who contended that the force had been moved to the east and enlarged until it was becoming something in the nature of "a standing army."

In the house much criticism was launched against the government of the day on the ground that needless expense was being incurred and that the force would have been better occupied had it been kept at its former work of policing only the less settled areas of Western Canada.

In view of this attitude among Liberal Members of Parliament, there is some expectation of the Mounted Police Force being returned to something like its former footing, though so far as can be learned there has been no decision or even discussion by the government as to what its policy in this regard is likely to be.

Legislature in Session.

The opening of the new Legislature took place on the 2d inst., in the presence of the largest and probably the most democratic crowd which ever attended such a function. In the election of a Speaker, Mr O L McPherson, who represents Little Bow, was elected by acclamation.

Lieut.-Gov. Brett then formally opened the session with the Speech from the Throne. The Speech expressed confidence in the ultimate return to normal of conditions in the Province; referred to action taken by the Government to deal with the economic situation, with respect not only to temporary relief, but also to a permanent solution; made reference to the Survey Board of So. Alberta; forecasted legislation with respect to the Highways Commission, establishment of Government labor branch, and other legislation with respect to public health and education.

The House resumed on Friday afternoon, when Don Cameron, of Innisfail, and J R Love, member for Wainwright, the youngest member in the House, moved the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The Sun Letter Box.

Editor Stony Plain Sun:

Dear Sir: It was indeed refreshing to read your description of the Minstrel Show, after seeing the misleading account in the Journal. As the Minstrels are, a capable and democratic bunch, they need no manager, leader or captain; they know what part they can play to the best advantage; and no member can rightfully say they taught another his role, which in most cases would of necessity be null and void without the assistance of a directress. Each member is entitled to the merit for his own performance. There is always one who must do the organising work, and you rightfully name Mr Jack Lory, on whose shoulders fell most of the work. Mrs Lory certainly deserves mention, also; as the creditable appearance of the troupe was largely attributable to this public-spirited lady.

Yours,

FAIRPLAY.
